Professional History

Will joined Ekistics in 2020, bringing with him knowledge gained from the private sector, Local Government, and most recently, State Government where he acted as a delegate of the State Planning Commission in a number of significant developments across the state.

In his time at State Government, Will was also a case manager for applications undergoing the pre-lodgement process - a service offered by the Department of Planning, Transport and Infrastructure, in working collaboratively with proponents and State Agencies in achieving greater outcomes. These included multi-storey commercial towers, residential buildings, school developments, and many in between.

Will's aptitude in development assessment covers both the Development Act 1993, and the recently implemented Planning, Development and Infrastructure Act 2016; undertaking many assessments under each legislation.

Will is highly adaptable and outcome focused with a background in Landscape Architecture and Urban Design, and has a deep understanding of the functions and nuances of both the private sector and all levels of government.
